

Red to the rescue

Wilmington firefighter Steve "Red" Robbins was one of several firefighters and police who teamed up to rescue a dog from Silver Lake last Thursday afternoon. Robbins and Officer Chris Neville went to the middle of the lake in the Fire Dept. boat to reach the dog.

Electric rates going up Jan. 1

The new year hasn't even arrived yet, and already it's costing you more money. The Reading Municipal Light Dept. (RMLD) last week announced an across-the-board 1.4 cent rate increase effective January 1. The rate change will increase the average bill by an estimated 8.2 percent.

The increase will be somewhat offset by reductions in the fuel adjustment charge. In a news release announcing the increase, the Reading Light Board said that the fuel charge is projected to drop by .65 cents during the course of 1983. The present fuel charge is four cents per kilowatt hour (kwh).

Also decreasing the increase is the department's 10 percent discount for payment within 15 days of billing. Thus, if a bill is paid promptly, the net increase is only 1.26 cents per kwh. The discount does not apply to the fuel charge.

The news release gave $3.54 as the estimated monthly increase for a residential customer using 540 kwh, without a controlled electric water heater. This would be a 7.13 percent increase over 1982.

Reasons given for the rate increase were increases in the cost of purchasing from current sources, and the addition of new sources. RMLD purchases much of its power from Boston Edison, but is able to purchase from other utilities in the power network.

The billing structure for the RMLD includes five types of accounts: residential, small general, large general, street lighting and cooperative, the latter being for exchanges of power with other departments.

For residential accounts, the increases are as follows: The first 100 kwh in each month will increase from 6.79 cents per kwh to 8.19 cents. The next 150 kwh will increase from 4.6 to 6 cents. Usage over 250 kwh will be charged at 4.56 cents, up from 3.16 cents.

A complete rate structure, as filed with the Mass. Dept. of Public Utilities, is published on page S-4 of this newspaper.

The last rate increase took place on May 1, 1981, and before that on Nov. 1, 1980. The fuel adjustment charge, though, fluctuates with oil prices. The highest fuel charge was in early 1981, when it was six cents per kwh.

Town census

Wilmington residents will soon receive a census form and a return envelope in the mail from the town clerk. The only thing missing is a stamp.

Town Clerk Pat Lynch said that the cost of paying return postage had risen to $1100. Consequently, she is asking residents to either stamp and mail the return envelope, or hand deliver it to the Town Hall. If neither of these options is suitable, she said, residents can call the number listed on the form, and tell the town clerk's office that they are still at the address listed, or if there are any changes.

Anyone not receiving the census form by January 10 should call the town clerk at 658-3311.

The surprise and controversy that marked 1981 in Wilmington carried right into 1982 to find the year beginning with a drug raid in early January in which two residents were arrested for possession of marijuana, cocaine, hashish and firearms.

As 1982 opened, the Wilmington Redevelopment Authority (WRA) met with Mike Integlia of Marteg to discuss problems with the construction of Jewel Drive in an effort to get that street completed. At that meeting, Integlia said he wanted to sell some of the property on that street, but was unable to because underground electrical wiring had not been installed. Integlia told the board that he wanted to put above-ground wiring in for the Vydel building since it would be easier to maintain and faster to install. The paving of the road also needed to be completed, and the meeting closed with everyone at a stalemate.

On Friday, January 8, nine youths were arrested at the high school for possession and sale of marijuana. During that same week, Game World moved from its original location in North Wilmington to Main Street.

Dr. Carol Sager was chosen as superintendent of schools on January 13. Around this same time, several people announced their candidacy for town offices for the town election in April. Those people were: Bob Cain, Diane Holmes and Anthony Pastore for three-year terms as selectman; Jay Donovan for a two-year term as selectman; Mike Cairra for town moderator; Lorraine Brozyna for re-election to the housing authority; and Robert Peterson and High School Senior Douglas McEvoy for school-committee. As the election progressed, James Stewart, Dennis Volpe and Anne Mahoney entered the race for two-year selectman; James Demos and Linda McMenimen announced their bids for re-election to the school committee; Anthony Acardi Jr. declared his candidacy for school committee; Bill Strob became a candidate for the housing authority; and Vaughn Suprenant entered the race for Wilmington Redevelopment Authority.

In early February, Jerry Missal, business manager for the Wilmington School Department accepted a position as assistant superintendent of schools in Marblehead. Frank Antonelli Jr. filled the vacancy left by Missal in early April. Also in early February, John Kelliher of Berkshire Builders presented plans for development of low income and elderly housing in Wilmington to the housing authority. Later that same month, Avco landed a $24 million contract with the government for the parts for MX missiles. Electric power finally got to the Vydel building on Jewel Drive in early March. Vydel's neighbor, Harwick Chemical allowed the developer to run power over their land. At that time also, Integlia said he was readying plans for the first layer of stone to be put in for the construction of the unfinished portion of the street. The planning board reminded him at that time that he had until May 19 to complete the job.

March was also a month of pride for Wilmington when resident Janet Flaherty, 24, won the title of Miss Massachusetts-U.S.A.

April got off to a cold start with a freak snow storm that left five to seven inches of the white stuff piled on the ground.

It was also a month for change as Robert Horan of Bristol, Conn., became the new assistant superintendent of schools, and as town elections saw many new faces and some well-recognized ones obtain places in town government.

Bob Cain returned to his seat as three-year selectman, while new-comer James Stewart took the seat across the table from him as two-year selectman. Lorraine Brozyna lost her bid for re-election to the housing authority to Bill Strob in a close race, while Linda McMenimen was re-elected to the school committee. Robert Peterson defeated incumbent James Demos for a school committee seat. Vaughn Suprenant won his bid for election to the Wilmington Redevelopment Authority and Mike Cairra became the new town moderator.

The recall petition made its way into the town charter as a result of April's election also.

The annual town meeting in April was completed in one marathon session, and an article that would have permitted the age for residents of elderly housing to be changed from 65 to 62 was voted down.

May opened with a fire at the Boutwell School on May 1 in which a 13-year-old was charged with setting the blaze. The West Intermediate School was reported to have been firebombed two days later.

The town received some good news financially. Moody's Investors Service gave the town a coveted Aa bond rating. Shortly thereafter, the town floated $2.89 in sewer construction bonds, at 9.9606 percent.

Around the same time, Mike Integlia went to the appeals board for a variance to allow the power lines to be above ground instead of underground as town bylaws mandate.

James Marsh was named Valedictorian of the Class of 1982.

In mid May, Leonard Caporale was charged with violations of the Wetlands Protection Act, the town's earth removal bylaw, zoning bylaws, and with unauthorized work on town property including the theft of town-owned gravel.

Later that month, at a joint meeting of the planning board and the redevelopment authority, Town Engineer Bob Higgins presented a list of 31 alleged errors he claimed Integlia had made in the construction of Jewel Drive.

On May 24, Jeanne Meuse, president of the Wilmington Little League was named "Good Guy" for 1982.

At the end of the month, the Federal Office of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) sent Executive Director of the Wilmington Housing Authority Henry Borazzo a letter stating that if HUD did not receive a development schedule for the housing project within two weeks after May 21 (the date the letter was sent) HUD would begin cancellation procedures for the $3 million reserved for the project.

June started off with a bang with the Wilmington Housing Authority voting to use chapter 774, the anti-snob zoning rule, to by-pass the town's vote on the housing issue and seek a comprehensive permit from the board of appeals for any work to be done on the project.

It was a month with one of the highest recorded rainfalls in the history of the state.

Also in June, with the selectmen voted to limit the number of hawkers and peddlers permits for ice cream, flowers, and balloons to three in each category. The building reuse task force and the permanent building committee were also activated at this time.

As June ended and July began, the town saw a Fourth of July celebration that will be remembered for some years to come. Using a theme of "Fun on the Fourth", the Fourth of July Committee organized events that attracted thousands of people. When the fireworks went off on the Fourth, there were no available spaces on or near the Common.

July also saw Dynamics Research Corp.'s proposal to buy up 21 acres of land along route 62 in order to build offices. The land was zoned residential, and DRC sought a change to industrial.

In mid July, HUD withdrew funds for the housing project and Berkshire Builders, the developers for the project pulled out.

One week later, Selectman Bob Cain suggested that the town consider taking over the project and become the developer in order to attempt to save the funds.

At the close of the month, the planning board asked Mike Integlia to submit a written proposal stating how he plans to complete Jewel Drive and that he would like to have the overhead wiring allowed.

August began with Wilmington agreeing to sell water to Tewksbury to help with that town's water shortage.

Halfway through the month, the planning board voted to take the $90,000 bond issue from Marteg (Integlia) for defaulting on an agreement to complete its part of Jewel Drive by May 19.

Around the same time, Cain tried to get an article on the warrant for the special town meeting to allow the town to be the developer for the housing. The warrant, however, closed a week later without his article.

In September, the town was awarded an $807,800 state grant for the reconstruction of Ballardvale Street.

Representative James Miceli won the primary over contender Frank Antonelli. The special town meeting did not get to vote on the DRC proposal. It was withdrawn as the hour grew late. The special town meeting, did, however, vote appropriation of $391,000. New positions created included a deputy police chief and two fire dispatchers. Another attempt to change the zoning law for housing to the elderly to an age 62 eligibility was defeated.

October began with Wilmington Housing Authority asserting its contention to find additional elderly housing through the auspices of town and other organizations.

The tax rate was set at $19.95 per thousand for residential property and $23.65 for commercial property.

Also in October, Marteg was taken off the Jewel Drive project on October 1, but later that month, Integlia said he wanted another chance.

The Committee for Handicapped Affairs was sworn in and held its first meeting in October. John Brown is chairman, Fred Neilson secretary. The name selected by the committee is AIM, for "Access Is Mandatory."

November saw Bob Buell winning his bid for re-election as state senator, defeating North Reading Town Moderator Steve O'Leary by 7303 votes.

Bill Belbin and Lorraine Brozyna resigned from the Council on Aging. Brozyna left to go to Minuteman Home Care Corp., and Belbin said his term expired in June and he wanted his name withdrawn as a council member. In December, following weeks of controversy, Elizabeth McLaughlin, Anastasia MacInnis and Elaine Hachey were named to the council.

Jewel Drive was all paved by mid November. The Spotlighters lost all their costumes and props in a fire at the Mildred Rogers School. The damage was estimated between $4000 and $6000, but there was little damage to the building itself.

By December, Avco's new building was well underway, with about 50 men employed in the construction; ribbon-cutting (Continued on Page 12)

Doreen Gacek and David Trull to wed

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Gacek of Tewksbury have announced the engagement of their daughter, Doreen Gacek to David Trull, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Bailey Trull Jr., also of Tewksbury.

Miss Gacek is currently attending the University of Lowell and is employed with Merrimack Valley Business Machines of Tyngsboro.

Her fiancé is a graduate of Bates College, Lewiston, Maine and is employed as manager of Trull Brook Golf Course, Inc., Tewksbury.

A June wedding is planned.

New Tewksbury 4-H club started

The newly formed Feathers and Fur 4-H Club of Tewksbury is seeking more members and anyone interested is urged to contact Mrs. Neilson at 851-4619.

At the first meeting, a county representative gave the group a visual presentation of the many opportunities offered by 4-H.

Later in the month, Mrs. McNeil, 4-H rabbit advisor spoke to the members about rabbits and even took along some baby New Zealand rabbits for the members to get acquainted with. It was a most enjoyable meeting.

Anyone interested in hypnotizing a rabbit might try this - Carefully cradle the animal on its back and gently rub the belly. However, be warned, this does not always work the first time.

Tewksbury Selectman Trueba completes legislative seminar

Tewksbury Selectman Dick Trueba was one of three area residents who recently participated in several state sponsored Citizens' Legislative Seminars. The series of seminars were conducted over the last several months at the State House in Boston.

The weekly sessions - which were conducted by a faculty consisting of current legislators - focused on the legislative process and political issues of current interest. The legislators conducted the seminars in an effort to inform the public about the business of government and to hear constituent views on controversial issues before the legislature.

It was State Senator Patricia McGovern (D-2 Essex and Middlesex) who nominated all three area participants for inclusion in the seminar's student body of approximately 40 individuals representing labor, business, education, the arts, citizens groups, and the media. McGovern also served as one of the seminar faculty members.

In addition to Trueba, the other area residents in attendance at the seminars were Billerica representative town meeting member Sandra Flescher and North Andover school teacher Patricia Hart-O'Connell.

France Hiller and her new husband, Henry II arrived at their home after the wedding to find many guests present. France, however was unable to attend to them. Her ankle was painful. She had to be carried upstairs and put to bed.

Dr. Daniel Buzzell who lived two doors away and was one of the guests, administered a sedative. Dr. Buzzell spent nearly the whole night taking care of Mrs. Dr. Henry Hiller.

The reception went on without the hostess. It was quite a party. The Boston Globe listed about 125 persons as being present and then added that it did not have a complete list.

The list is interesting, in finding out who was present. It is even more interesting in finding out who was not present.

There were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rose for instance. Dr. and Mrs. Dr. Hiller were boarders in the Rose home when they first arrived in Wilmington 20 years before.

The Rose family was at the reception, but the McIntosh family from across the street was conspicuous by its absence. Mrs. Dr. Hiller and Mrs. Mary Ann McIntosh had been pretty good friends.

Schamiel, Mary Ann's son had married Agnes L. (Polly) Mathinson, France's niece, six months previously. Agnes and her sister Jessie had lived with France Hiller for many years. Agnes became the bookkeeper for the Hiller business. She was better known, for some reason, as Polly.

It was Polly who had pulled the hair of France Hiller on March 15. The act was seen by a Boston Globe writer who wrongly attributed it to an act of a girl who had been disappointed in love.

Polly was still the bookkeeper for France Hiller, but no longer were there social relationships with France. The same was true for her sister Jessie.

When Polly became Mrs. McIntosh she moved to his home on Main Street, currently 470 Main Street. So did Jessie. The two ladies lived there for years with Schamiel. When Schamiel bought a fur coat for himself he bought one for his wife and one for his sister-in-law.

Schamiel, Polly and Jessie were not among the guests that evening in the Hiller home, but Polly would have a few words to say in future years.

Selectman John T. Wilde and Mrs. Wilde were among the guests. They lived in a big house overlooking Silver Lake, where he was the superintendent of the ice houses; where the Mildred Rogers School was later built. John T. Wilde was the man who sang basso at the funeral of Dr. Henry Hiller, as one of the Silver Lake Quartet. There is nothing to indicate he did any singing at the reception for France and Henry Hiller II.

The Eames family was present. There were at least a dozen. There was Miss Catherine Eames at the reception who, with Mrs. James E. Kelley received the guests for France in her absence, but there is no record of any Miss Catherine Eames in Wilmington.

Presumably she was a daughter of Othniel and Ella Eames who lived at 400 Woburn St. and with whom France was very friendly. But other than that they lived in Wilmington there is very little that can be found out about them.

Othniel was born in Wilmington. He worked for years for the Narrow Gauge, the railroad between Lynn and the Boston ferries and married a girl named Ella Glover. The friendship of France was with Ella.

With no intention on his part Othniel is and was a mystery in Wilmington. His son Arthur W. was one of the ushers at the wedding. There is no birth record for him, either.

The Eames family, frequently did not believe in letting the town in on its secrets, it seems. Othniel and his family were not alone in this, as any good son or daughter of Wilmington can sometimes testify.

Catherine Eames assisted at the reception. Nothing else is known about the young lady.

There were a number of people from Boston in addition to the locals, most of whom were of Yankee descent. There were quite a few Irish people, all from Wilmington, but there were no French. Henry Hiller II was French, but none of his relatives were invited, it seems.

The Irish families numbered among them Tom McMahon, the McEnroe family, Mike Carlin, Daniel Kelley and his two sons (with their wives) John and James.

All were prominent in the founding of St. Thomas Church. Many of them lived near the church.

Daniel Kelley, Irish born, had lived in Wilmington since about 1850. He had been a baker in the Bond Bakeries. His oldest son, John, was born in Boston, and James, who was town clerk and selectman for many years was born in Wilmington.

James (Jim) Kelley was the person of absolute rectitude, a man who never used any profanity and never told even a white lie. He had a partner, in a way, for also present was William Henry Carter of Shawsheen Avenue.

There was an older man of the same name, so that William became number two of that name. He was familiarly called Bill Hen Two.

Like Jim Kelley, Bill Hen was a man of absolute rectitude. His strongest epithet was Boston Baked Beans!

Mrs. Carter was not among the guests. She was at home with a six month old daughter, Jessie.

In a sense Jim Kelley and Bill Hen Two made up, in a way, for the absence of any clergymen of Wilmington.

Neither of the Protestant ministers were present, nor was Father J.J. Ryan of St. Thomas church. But, among those present was the Rev. F.N. Allen, he who had united France and Henry II in marriage on the night of March 15, 1883.

The guest list was impressive. There were portents, too, in the names of those who were not present.

Nor was there a honeymoon, or so it seems. The swollen ankle prevented such a trip, as had been planned, to Florida.

*Don't push my eyes away
Even if you feel they're too close.
For it's the imperfections of your face
That delight these lenses the most.
And though it's hard for me to look at you,
Still, I just like the way it reflects,
Off your expressions, your stockings, your dress.*

"Spain"

*I used to look at a child's face and see a child in it,
But now I only see them as the adults they will become.
Have I lost one sense of wonder,
Have mistaken senility for wisdom,
Hopes for guarantees.
Age for improvement.*

*Your fading features softly tell, who it is you are.
But they're not easy to pick out, between the lines, folds and scars.*

*Complexions camouflaged with a terminal surface age,
Now her beauty looks so tired, after five children born and raised.
Lines adorn her cheeks, the way ivory clings to mansion walls,
And as the iron ages, the hands of time, drag me older, down the wall.*

*But now my eyes are all shot and blurred,
after having spent the night,
Looking between the stars and past the darkness searching,
For a glimpse of heaven's lights.
It's a lifetime to the outer hedge, but I believe I've seen the limits edge.
You wouldn't pick your reading by its cover, from the shelf,
And yet you judge me by a face, I did not choose myself.*

*I have never seen, lines around the mouth that smiles,
Only under the eyes that cried, until the skin looked like cracking tiles.*

*A face is only a facade, to mask feelings we try to hide.
Though you may know me on the surface, we're all strangers tucked inside.
My mirrors stare looks so familiar, from the reflection that I cast, Still I don't recognize the face, on the other side of the glass.*

*A face isn't truly broken in,
until it has earned the distinguished markings of middle age.
But then like fruit left in the open sun too long, skins crease like drying leather,
as slopes of flesh slowly sag off arthritic skulls.
All profiles decay.
After life has written its epic on us,
in the form of old age.*

*My eyes may not be gentle, but then neither is all they've seen.
We're all starved for compliments, that leave our brittle egos far too lean.
A woman uses her cosmetics, to color over what she really fears.
But it's so hard to show ourselves, as we truly do appear.*

Wilde home

Selectman John T. and Mrs. Wilde lived in this home on Lake Street in Wilmington. It is now the home of Henry and Janet Gilhooly. Wilde was superintendent of the ice houses at Silver Lake. Wild Avenue, the road to the old Silver Lake railroad station, was named after him. Someone, however, changed the spelling of the name.

Storm policy announced for Tewksbury schools

In order to conserve on the use of "no school days" The Tewksbury School Committee voted to adopt an alternate plan to delay the starting of school on mornings when it appears weather conditions will improve. Under the plan the following schedule will be followed:

High School, starting time 9 a.m., bus pickup starts at 8:30 a.m.; Junior High School, starting time 9:30 a.m., bus pickup starts at 9 a.m.

Elementary Schools: North Street starting time, 9:30 a.m., bus pickup starts at 9 a.m.; All others, starting time, 10 a.m., bus pickup starts at 9:30 a.m. Morning kindergarten classes will be cancelled.

Afternoon kindergarten classes will have regular schedule.

The only variations to this plan would be postponing the starting of school an additional one-half hour or one hour. In this case bus pickup will be one-half or one hour later.

All schools will be dismissed at regular time.

If this alternate plan is used it will be announced on the radio stations normally used for "no school announcements." (WRKO, WCAP, WLLH, WCCM, WBZ)

The decision to cancel school will be made after all weather conditions and road conditions have been evaluated on the basis of information available at the time. Parents are reminded that if they feel it is unwise to send their children to school on stormy days the final decision is theirs.

Carpenter shop can expand

Charles Karner of 250 Whipple Road, Tewksbury may expand his woodworking shop at his home. So the Tewksbury Board of Appeals said, unanimously December 27. Karner will have to wait a week for the board to write its stipulations on what he may and may not do.

He has had the shop for 13 years and it formerly was part of a farm woodworking shop, the board was told. It is located in a building which looks like a two car garage. It is behind his house and quite a distance from the road. There are no signs.

Karner is a cabinet maker and all his work is by referral, he told the appeals board. His son is now going to work with him.

The appeal vote was unanimous, and chairman Bob Greenleaf added that the place is "100 percent neat."

As of January 1, to get service or phones call your Telephone Business Office.

It's the first call you should make.
And in some cases, it's the only call you'll need to make.

How do you get service?

The best way to arrange telephone service is to call your local Telephone Business Office. Why? Because we're going to eliminate all our PhoneCenter Stores on January first (some will be going to American Bell, and the rest will be converted to New England Telephone Service Centers).

So, making that one phone call to your Telephone Business Office is all you need to do.

And it's very easy to do. You'll find the number on the first page of your phone bill, or listed in your telephone directory.

How do you get telephones?

New England Telephone is still providing phones, subject to availability. But we don't have PhoneCenter Stores any more. So how do you get phones from us?

Simple. Just call your Telephone Business Office. The Service Representative there will handle all arrangements and tell you how and where you can pick up your telephones. Or, if you prefer, have them delivered to your home or business.

What's next?

This is one of several changes that have resulted from a ruling of the Federal Communications Commission, which affects how you'll get service or telephone equipment from New England Telephone.

But despite these changes, New England Telephone will still be your local phone company.

We'll be here, working harder than ever to see you through the coming changes. And doing our best to see that you barely notice any change at all.

But to do our job right, we need to stay in touch with you. So let's talk. If you have questions, call us on our "Let's Talk" line 1 800 555-5000. We've got the answers.

Tsongas' staff in Lowell Jan. 3

Senator Paul Tsongas will send staff member Shirley Simons to meet with residents from Tewksbury and other area towns on Monday, January 3 from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. in Lowell City Hall. The informal question and answer session will be open to the public and individuals will be met on a first come, first served basis. No appointment is necessary.

Some of the issues that Senator Tsongas has been involved in most recently include the Japanese challenge to the high technology industry and its effect on Massachusetts' economic future. He has also expressed concerns about the pressing need for a nuclear freeze proposal and the high national unemployment rate. In a press release, Tsongas says, "Rather than provide the effective leadership necessary for a return to economic prosperity, the President has chosen to stick to a course that threatens to choke off any hope of recovery."

Social security, immigration, small business, student loans, and housing are also among the many subjects that citizens have raised with Shirley Simons. Tsongas, a member of the Senate Committees on Energy, Small Business and Foreign Relations, recently expressed his support for continued federal assistance for low-income housing. "The federal commitment to housing dates back to 1937. In Massachusetts, where we have very low vacancy rates, large numbers of housing units are in need of repair and upgrading; and for the thousands of elderly and low-income families who lack decent affordable housing, these problems are of critical importance," Tsongas says in his press release.

Tsongas encourages citizens to meet with his staff member, Shirley Simons when she is in Lowell on Monday, January 3.

New Tewksbury postmaster

Tewksbury's new postmaster, Angelo D'Ambrosio (left) of Wakefield, is anxious to bring the best possible service to post office patrons. He met several of those patrons, including John McCarthy of Carnation Drive (right) during a sort of open house on Saturday, December 18.

There was fresh coffee and doughnuts and lots of conversation with those who came to the post office.

D'Ambrosio says he is anxious to receive suggestions on ways of improving local service. He also said there are about 600 new post office boxes for patrons who prefer getting their mail there.

Tewksbury piggery building given approval

The Tewksbury Board of Appeals has approved proposed changes of the former Krochmal piggery off South Street, but a week will elapse before the final conditions are made. The approval was by an unanimous vote Monday evening.

The proposed improvements constitute a destruction of the wooden structures which have served the piggery for many years and substitution of a slightly larger brick building. Attorney Thomas Sullivan of Melrose represented the present owner, John Cave, also of Melrose.

Building Inspector William Granfield had stopped work in the piggeries, stating that they were not permitted in Tewksbury and that the work could not be done. Sullivan was appealing the case because it was, he said, a non-conforming use, in that the piggery had been in business for many years.

The site, he said, is a farm. He did not deny there was an odor. The pigs now live outside, and if the board grants a permit to erect the building the pigs will move inside.

Cave wants to erect a modern 8200 square foot building. The present wooden buildings total about 7500 square feet.

With the new building the swine and their food would all be enclosed, the board was told. If granted, the building would conform to the building code of Tewksbury.

Cave now purchases 1800 to 2000 piglets a year. He is trying to improve the piggery and to have inside farrowing pens. With the new building he would eliminate anything being on the ground and would eliminate the source of many odors, but not all.

The 40-acre farm is zoned for heavy industry, and is over 300 feet from the street.

Cave wants to erect a home on the farm, his attorney said. If he has to discontinue the piggery he would have no alternative but to sell to some industrial firm.

Only one family was present, from South Street. They told the board that they would like to see the farm closed, but that the proposal was much better than things are now.

Tom Girard noted that statement before the final vote. The neighborhood, he feels, is "very vocal," and the only persons to show up, were in fact, in favor.

Granfield has been granted use of Town Counsel Charles Zaroulis for an opinion on the matter, but the two, according to Granfield, have yet to meet to discuss the problem.

2nd Lt. Brewster Butters

Butters training to fly "The Plane"

Brewster Butters was not home for Christmas with his parents, Robert and Ethel Butters of Middlesex Avenue, Wilmington. Bruce, as he is better-known, is now a second lieutenant in the U.S. Air Force and has a lot of work to do.

The 1977 WHS graduate recently graduated from a Flight Cadet School in Oklahoma. He was number three in his class. He got a few days home and then it was off to more studies.

Other graduates in that class are on a Christmas leave, but not the top three. There is more training for them, and if they stick with it they will become F-16 pilots in the Air Force.

The F-16 is "The Plane." It is a very sophisticated fighter, and only top notch pilots are allowed to fly it.

Those three grads are now in a school near Albuquerque, New Mexico for immediate and further training. They will stay at that school for another six weeks.

The final training, a one year course, will be at McGill Field, Tampa, Florida. During that year there will be a trip to the State of Washington where they will undergo a six weeks "wilderness" course. There is a name for that. It is called "How to live on porcupine and other animals."

When Bruce graduates he will be in the "hottest" league of pilots in the Air Force. Then there will be three years of overseas duty. After that, presumably, he will be allowed to go home for Christmas.

Boston Camp Fire, is partially funded by the Massachusetts Council for the Arts and Humanities.

The Little Flagg Theatre Company, under the direction of Maxine Klein, offers Camp Fire Youth performance experience famous all over the Boston area for its multi-ethnic focus featuring audience participation. A deed well done

Local Chapter Xi Alpha Delta of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority has upheld its benevolent tradition by making a substantial Christmas donation to the Friends of the Jimmy Fund.

The group also assisted a local needy family and donated an American flag to Girl Scout Troop 323, Billerica.

The contributions were made possible by a recent square dance fundraiser held in Billerica.

Visual Technology, Inc.

Visual Technology Inc., of Tewksbury reported third quarter sales increased 18 percent to $5,800,304 from $4,917,367 in the same period a year ago. Net income was $548,561 or $1.5 per share, compared to $539,859 or $1.18 per share in the third quarter last year.

Thomas Foley, president said, "Sales for the quarter were about $1,000,000 below expectations, but noted that the cause was a one-time production problem and does not represent a slowdown in orders or a change in the strength of the business. The problem has been corrected and a return to growth in sales is expected in the fourth quarter."

WHY REPLACE MISSING TEETH

If you're concerned about your appearance, you should also be concerned about the need to replace missing teeth.

Your lips and cheeks are supported by the position of your teeth. All of your teeth should be there to give your lips and cheeks full support. In one sense they act like a natural support in preventing your lips and cheeks from falling inward. This support is threatened, however, when you have teeth extracted but not replaced. The cheeks will tend to collapse, giving them a hollow look. The facial skin that is normally stretched tightly over the teeth will begin to sag. When this happens, wrinkles will appear and your facial outline will be accentuated. This can add years to your true age.

By replacing missing teeth, your face will receive the support it needs. It will "pump out" again, eliminating the wrinkles and the sags caused by missing teeth. This can help you not only feel younger but look younger again, too.

MVC wrestling preview

Billerica the team to beat

Once again Billerica, Lowell and Chelmsford are the class of the Merrimack Valley Conference wrestling crop, with an injury or a slip among any weight class the difference between a first or third place finish among the three teams. Tewksbury, long an MVC mat power, is taking the first steps back after a losing season, while a young Wilmington team will learn the wrestling ropes this winter. A look at some of the conference teams.

1. Billerica-The Indians were 13-3 in the dual meet season last year and they return virtually the same lineup. Leading the way are 107 pounder Mike Quinn (second in sectionals, MVC champ) and 134 pounder Dwayne Cassidy, a sectional champ a year ago.

2. Lowell-Lowell has lost just one dual meet in three years, was the State Champ in 1980 and 1981 and the Division I North Sectional kingpin last winter, but lack of people in the upper weight classes could plague coach George Bossi. Plenty of quality lower weight wrestlers however.

3. Chelmsford-The Lions lost just one dual meet last year and coach Bruce Rich has five veteran matmen returning. John Bickford, a 187 pounder who was fourth in the sectionals, heads that group.

4. Methuen-Another step up for the improving Rangers.

5. Tewksbury-Dana Rasmussen, a former TMHS state champion and a recent graduate of UMass, takes over for the resigned Jock Patterson and hopes to lead the Redmen mat pack back after a rare losing season.

Rasmussen has coaxed several wrestlers back to the mat after a year away from the sport, and their presence could help the TMHS cause. The returning Redmen starters include Steve Voto (107), Al Gianetta (128), Mark Donovan (134), John Voto (140), Paul Mills (147) and Bill McCreddy (157).

Senior Tony Masone (187) has returned to the fold after a year on the sidelines, and senior heavyweight Mike Buscanera is expected back after he recuperates from a broken ankle he suffered early in the football season. Dave Hague (121) is also back after a year away.

Redmen wrestling rookies include transfer student Paul Ferdinand (114), Lloyd Corricelli (169), John Giasullo (114) and Steve Flaherty (100).

6. Dracut-A best-ever 10-7 season won't be repeated, not with a team of underclassmen strung together around 187 pound MVC champ Vin Shepard, 14-1 in dual meets last year.

7. Wilmington-The Wildcats are going with untested underclassmen in their third year of varsity competition, and to date are doing quite well, thank you.

Tough in close

Tewksbury High School center Leeann Stewart (10) banks home a short jumper in her team's 44-42 victory over Chelmsford in semifinal action of the sixth annual Greater Lowell Holiday Basketball Tournament Tuesday night. The Redmen will defend their holiday title when they play Wilmington Thursday night (Dec. 30) at the University of Lowell. See story this page.

Heated action

Wilmington players Mary Linehan (25) and Michelle DiGiralamo (30) battle a host of Andover girls for a loose ball in their 45-34 semifinal Holiday Tourney victory Tuesday. The unbeaten (4-0) Wildcats will square off against Tewksbury for the tourney championship Thursday night.

MVC boys' basketball preview

Lowell, Billerica conference class

by Rick Cooke
Sports Editor

All signs point directly to another heated race in the Merrimack Valley Boys' Basketball Conference, with tight races in both the large and small school divisions.

Last year the conference clubs competed in one 14 school league, with Lawrence Central Catholic (17-3) clinching its first MVC crown ahead of Chelmsford and Andover, both 14-2.

The 1983 setup, with the departure of Austin Prep and Greater Lowell, has six teams in the large school division. They are Lowell, Chelmsford, Central, Andover, Haverhill and Greater Lawrence. The small school lineup includes Wilmington, Billerica, Tewksbury, Dracut, Methuen and Lawrence. Billerica normally would be in the large school division, with Central in the small circuit, but the two schools filed petitions to allow the switch in boys basketball only.

The MVC season officially taps off Tuesday night January 4, with the area teams tuning up beforehand with various non-league games, and Christmas tournaments. Last week we looked at the respective Wilmington and Tewksbury roundball pictures. Now, a broader look at the conference and the race to postseason play.

Large School
1. Lowell-The Red Raiders, fresh off early season routs of Lawrence and Tewksbury, could cruise to this division crown if veteran coach Charlie Ryan can keep a talented group of big men off the solo circuit.

Lowell has 10 players who are 6-2 or better, and all of them can play. Leading the pack is 6-6 Alabama senior transfer Rufus Woods. Other quality veterans are senior tri-captain and guard Steve Montminy (6-1) and sophomore forward Ramon Rivera (6-4).

2. Central Catholic-The defending MVC champ will be minus All-Star center Tim Hart (Merrimack) and hard-pressed to repeat its 17-3 record of a year

Lowell Holiday Tournament

A Wilmington-Tewksbury final

It will be Wilmington against defending champ Tewksbury for the Greater-Lowell Holiday Basketball Tournament girls' division title Thursday night (Dec. 30, 7 p.m.) at the University of Lowell.

That showdown was set up with semifinal action Tuesday that saw coach Doug Anderson's unbeaten Wildcats trim Andover, 45-34 while Tewksbury repeated its victory over Chelmsford last year a round earlier with a 44-42 conquest. Wilmington had advanced to play the Redmen, who drew a first game bye, with a 45-30 quarterfinal slugging of Lowell Monday.

Against Andover Wilmington jumped out to a 14-6 first quarter lead and fought off the bigger Golden Warriors with some spirited rebounding on both boards.

The Wildcats led 23-14 at the half, but saw that lead cut to 30-26 after three quarters.

Senior center Michelle DiGiralamo paced the winners with 13 points, while senior forward Susan Gillespie hit for 10. Karen Rowe, Anne Ryan and sophomore Gail Lombard each canned six points for Wilmington.

In the second game played Tuesday, Tewksbury broke to a 14-7 first quarter advantage, survived a poor second quarter (Chelmsford led 22-21 at the half) to rally for a 33-30 third quarter edge before stretching that margin in the final quarter behind the swooping drives and defense of senior guard Sue Rheault.

Rheault's three point play with 6:34 left in the game gave coach Barry Sheehan's defending tourney champs a 38-32 lead. Chelmsford managed to whittle away at the margin until senior center Leeann Stewart sank an offensive rebound for a 44-40 gap with just seven seconds left in the contest.

Sue Rheault paced the winners with 11 points, while Stewart and senior forward Mary Hill hit for eight points apiece.

Christmas tourney

Wildcats vs. North Reading for tourney title

The host Wilmington Wildcats (3-0) and the North Reading Hornets have advanced to the championship game of the Wilmington Invitational Christmas Tournament with routs over Bedford and Austin Prep Monday night.

Wilmington and North Reading will tap off for the title at 8 p.m. tonight (Dec. 29) at WHS following the consolation tilt between Austin Prep and Bedford at 6:30. Wilmington will be defending the tourney title it won a year ago.

Coach Jim Tildsley's Cats, fresh off two impressive non-league wins over Chelsea, burned Bedford 56-40 behind the play of Bob Ducharme (11 points), Bob Perry (8), Mark Whitney (14) and Jon Nolan (16).

Austin Prep was slow in getting its attack untracked and eventually dropped a 65-42 decision to a solid North Reading team.

Kelley nominated

Longtime Wilmington High School track and field coach Frank Kelley has been nominated for a National Coach of the Year Award by the Massachusetts State Coaches' Association. Kelley, a very popular coach at WHS, has led the boys and girls cross country and track teams for many years.

MVC girls' basketball preview

Out from the shadows

by Rick Cooke
Sports Editor

A graduation induced changing of the Merrimack Valley Conference girls' basketball guard combined with a restructured division alignment should make for a very interesting 1982-83 season.

Over the past two years the conference has featured some of the best basketball talent in the state, most notably Tewksbury's Jerrie Bernier (UMass) and Patty Murphy (New Hampshire College), Chelmsford's Jeanmarie Buckley, Andover's Heather Thomas and Wilmington's Paula Burns (Penn) and Megan Donnelly (UMass).

With all of this departed talent, this season marks the opportunity for other talented but overshadowed players to shine.

The small school-large school division alignments will have two time defending MVC champ Tewksbury in a division with Wilmington, Methuen, Dracut, Billerica and Lawrence. The large school lineup will feature Chelmsford, Andover, Haverhill, Lowell and Greater Lawrence.

Tewksbury and Wilmington are the two MVC teams currently battling for the ULowell Holiday Tournament title. The Redmen are the defending champs. Following the tourney the teams will open their respective conference seasons January 4.

Tewksbury Redmen
Coach Barry Sheehan is losing 33 points per game (Bernier and Murphy) and a bucketful of pressure game experience. Forward June DeStefano (ULowell) and backup center Cindy Fentross (Middlesex) have also graduated. Bernier's rebounding and Murphy's defensive quickness are two very important losses for a team that has gone 20-1, 16-4 and 14-6 over the past three seasons.

"We have a lot of kids who can play, and we also have some depth," notes Sheehan. "This league graduated a lot of premier players. The question is did all of these players carry their teams? It's hard to say if it's a weaker league, with several people playing in the shadows of a lot of the great players that have graduated."

What Tewksbury can count on is the best all-round backcourt play in the conference. Senior point guard Robin Riddle (5-3) will team with smooth shooting Sue Rheault (5-2) in what should be an all-star backcourt. Both are quick defensively and penetrate to the basket well when they have the ball.

Tewksbury's pressing game should remain intact with this tandem.

The other Tewksbury starters are veterans with tourney experience (last year's lone loss was to Winthrop in the tournament). The center is senior Leeann Stewart (5-10), who is being asked to fill the rebounding and defensive void. Sheehan was pleased with Stewart's 14 point, 11 rebound effort in the team's opening non-league 43-22 rout of Keith Hall.

Teaming with Stewart in the frontcourt will be seniors Mary Hill (5-7) and Pam Brabant (5-8). Brabant, Tewksbury's best shooting forward, has been sidelined by a knee strain, but should be ready for the conference opener. Brabant's health is very important to this team. "Pam was looking tremendous until she went down with that knee injury," notes the TMHS coach.

The Redmen, as has been their custom in recent seasons, should wear teams down with their break and pressing game. This team has excellent depth. "I'm sure that our depth will help us, I'm just hoping that we won't get hurt too badly off the boards," offers Sheehan.

Tewksbury's depth will be in the hands of seniors Maria Catalano (5-9, center), Kathy Sullivan (5-6, forward), Chris Kiernan (5-5, guard), Kelly Carey (5-4, guard) and Shawna Booker (5-9, forward). Important juniors off the TMHS bench are Missy Riddle (5-5, guard-forward), Laura Briggs (5-4, guard) and Mary Rheault (5-7, forward). Juniors Sandy Hennessy (5-3, guard) and Eileen Griffin (5-8, forward) will be battling for the remaining minutes off the bench.

Tewksbury's guard firepower and its quickness defensively should be enough to chalk up a small school title and qualify for a fourth straight tourney berth. "We've got enough people who can score," says Sheehan, "right now we're looking for that leadership." That leadership should come from seniors Rheault, Riddle, Stewart, Hill and Brabant, all of whom have at least one year of a winning tradition behind them. Rheault has been a contributor since her sophomore season.

Tewksbury scrimmaged Concord Carlisle and North Andover prior to the non-league victory over Keith Hall.

The Redmen open their 1982-83 season with a home game at Shawsheen Tech January 4. The opponent is Lawrence, and game time is 6:30 p.m. Both the TMHS boys' and girls' roundball squads will split their home schedule between the Tech, Middlesex Community College and ULowell.

Wilmington Wildcats
Coach Doug Anderson's girls have utilized a balanced attack around solid passing in victories over Keith Hall, Arlington and most recently Lowell and Andover in the Greater Lowell Holiday Tournament.

Key grads for the Wildcats are forwards Paula Burns and Robin Parsons and guards Megan Donnelly and Kathy Schultz. Senior center Lisa Lombard chose not to go out for the team.

Three of the top WHS players are senior tri-captains Karen Rowe, Anne Ryan and Susan Gillespie.

Rowe is a returning all-conference guard, and was named the team's most valuable player a year ago. Karen, also a captain and all-conference volleyball player, can swing to forward and is Wilmington's best perimeter shooter. Miss Rowe tops all this off with a ranking of fourth in the senior class.

Gillespie, ranked 17th in her class, is a returning starter at forward. Susan received the Coach's Award for her solid work on last winter's 11-6 team.

Ryan, most valuable player in the MVC field hockey circuit this year, returns to team up with Rowe in an outstanding Wildcat backcourt. Anne, who is ranked 12th in her class, was recently selected to the Boston Globe All-Scholastic field hockey team.

These three outstanding leaders with a history of winning seasons will team up with smooth shooting senior Debbie Bannon to lead WHS to another fine finish in the small school division. Other senior contributors will be Mary Linehan, Alice MacNamara and Michelle DiGiralamo, juniors Linda Nistico, Cheryl Evans and Sandra Crowley, and sophomores Gail Lombard, Sharon Carbone and Janet Crowley.

Wilmington opens its 1983 MVC season at home with Methuen January 4 starting at 6:30 p.m.

ago. The leader will be 6-6 junior forward Leo Parent, an MVC All-Star as a sophomore.

3. Andover- The lone returning starter for Wil Hixon is senior guard E.J. Perry, one of the best pure shooters in the conference. The Golden Warriors are vulnerable in the frontcourt.

4. Chelmsford- The Lions graduated four starters from last winter's 16-3 club. Like Tewksbury, Chelmsford will be operating without a home gym until its floor is repaired. The top players here are senior sharpshooting guard Charlie Micol and senior forward Steve Desort.

5. Haverhill- New coach Paul Rouse is minus the graduated Tony Fultz, but the Hillies do have some quality veterans back from last year's 10-8 team.

6. Greater Lawrence- Speed and the play of the underclassmen will determine whether this team can improve upon a 6-12 slate.

Small School
1. Billerica- The Indians are loaded, with 17 year coaching veteran Ed James boasting the best guard in the MVC - senior Derek Dixon. A very talented cast features 6-4 sophomore center Mike Dagle and senior forward Dave Perrow. They board, break and shoot well, with the only problem being a tendency to go into an offensive funk.

2. Wilmington- The Wildcats will better last year's 9-9 finish behind the play of senior center Mark Whitney and senior guards Jon Nolan and Ed Olshaw. Swingman Bob Perry is also a solid player for this senior dominated team. The Wildcats time may finally have come, for this can be a good basketball team.

3. Methuen- A darkhorse pick on the coaching strengths of former Timberlane mentor Bucky Tardiff. This team should improve upon 4-15.

4. Lawrence- Sophomores who have a tendency to play out of control could send the Lancers off their 10-8 mark of a year ago.

5. Dracut- The Middies return three starters from last year's 5-11 team, but lack of depth coupled with the loss of Bob Marchelletta (knee) will set them back.

6. Tewksbury- New coach Bob Melillo will count on the point guard play of senior Tony Romano and the board work of frontcourt players Dave Whitney, George Acritelli and Ken Sinclair. This is at the least a four year reclamation project.

Wildcats, Indians division favorites

Perennial power Austin Prep is gone (Catholic Conference) along with the traditional Merrimack Valley Hockey League setup. The large school-small school lineup is very much in vogue this season, but lucky for the locals, both Wilmington and Tewksbury should dominate the small school division. Billerica and Chelmsford look to be set for a battle in the large school circuit.

Large School

1. Billerica- The winner of three State Championships in the 70's has an outstanding first line and all the ability to match or better last winter's 17-3-0 overall slate.

2. Chelmsford- Five veteran forwards and a steady defense return to a team that shared second place with Austin Prep with a 13-4-3 slate.

3. Lowell- Graduation has depleted this team that returns only a veteran goaltender and two experienced defensemen. That won't be enough to challenge Billerica and Chelmsford.

4. Haverhill, 5. Andover, 6. Greater Lawrence.

Small School

1. Wilmington- Coach Bill Cullen's Cats are the team to beat in this division after last year's 11-5-2 record that sent the team to its third consecutive Eastern Mass. Division I Tournament, where WHS dropped a tough 2-0 decision to Arlington Catholic.

The Wildcats boast good depth, with five forwards and three defensemen returning. The team also has been helped by a couple of homecoming transfer students. Wilmington has so much talent that Cullen should be able to skate four lines this season.

Another Wilmington line has soph Dave Richards at center between wings Jim Taylor (sophomore) and Brian Tully (junior). Senior wing Gerry O'Reilly will be included somewhere in that lineup when he returns from an injury.

The defense is headed by senior co-captain Ed Olson and junior Kevin Sullivan. Another duo pairs sophomores Dave Fuller and Dante DeMarco. Seniors Charlie Athanasia and John Blaisdell will team up with support from sophomore Steve Caizzi and senior Brian Quellette.

The starting goaltender is senior Chuck Webster, who sat behind Jeff Lux (Brigham Young) for two seasons. Webster's backups are junior Don Gunn and sophomore Billy Wolfe.

All of this manpower should capably supplant the graduation of defensemen Jim Conti (Colby), Ted Moran (West Point) and Bob Williams, and forwards Craig Richards (ULowell) and John Cushing. Wilmington prepared for the recent Elks Holiday Tourney with scrimmages against Woburn, Marblehead and Triton Regional.

The team scored an opening 8-0 rout of Bedford, as Dennis Moran pocketed three goals. Bob Curran was next with two, and Jim Smith, Dan Ward and Kevin Smith had one lamplighter apiece.

2. Tewksbury- The Redmen almost cracked postseason play last year with a solid 9-4-2 record. This year the Redmen under second year coach Joe Robillard hope to challenge Wilmington in the small school division.

The team is keyed by the play of senior netminder Ed Walsh, who was one of the best in the league a year ago.

The Redmen are also counting on an improved attack led by Austin Prep junior transfer Joe Seluk, who centers one line for senior right wing Pat Tremlett (9-7-16) and senior left wing Glen Fougere.

Senior co-captain Mark Walsh will center another potent line between wings Dana Tower (junior) and Joe Blum (sophomore). A veteran TMHS line has senior Paul Crowley centering for fellow seniors Armand Dias (13-5-18) and Terry Fera (2-8-10). If these names sound familiar, its because most of the TMHS hockey team were members of the highly successful soccer varsity this past fall.

The defense will feature rugged senior Tom Carpenito with senior Kevin McKenna, sophomores Craig Leduc and Scott Thornton and senior Ed Tumenas.

Junior transfer Tim Kelley (Central Catholic) will see action at a wing, while the backup goalies are juniors Scott Nelson and Steve McPherson.

Tewksbury battled Danvers, Triton Regional, Lowell and Bedford before their games in the first annual Elks Holiday Tournament.

TMHS graduates include Mike Dascoli, Greg Reposa (New Hampshire College), Derek Vachon (Bentley) and Bill Byers.

Elks Hockey Festival

Wildcats, Redmen drop tourney tilts

Both the Wilmington and Tewksbury High School hockey teams dropped games at Woburn Sunday in the four team Elks Christmas Festival. Wakefield tripped up Wilmington, 5-2, while the Redmen fell to tourney host Woburn, 2-0.

Wilmington saw its record slip to 2-1 with the loss, getting goals from Bob O'Connell (from Frank Newark) and Dennis Moran (from Charles Athanasia).

Senior goalie Ed Walsh kept the Redmen in the game as the Tanners outshot the Redmen, 27-14 scoring their goals in the first and third periods.

Wilmington police news

Christmas night Officer Dave McCue arrested a juvenile on motor vehicle and malicious damage charges. The youth was digging up the ballfield at the West Intermediate School with his car.

A late evening accident resulted in David Goulsbrough of Glen Road being arrested by Officer Bob Vassallo. The officer charged Goulsbrough with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol. He was later bailed for a Monday court appearance.

Three youths were arrested Sunday evening and charged with trespassing on private property in North Wilmington. Jeffrey Fama of Oakdale Road and two juveniles were released for Monday court appearances. In Woburn Court on Monday, Fama and one juvenile paid $100 fines. The third youth had his case continued. Officers Neville and Waterhouse made the arrests.

Extensive damage was done to a car which slid into a school bus stopped on Woburn Street Thursday. The driver of the car, Robert Wilton of Andover was not injured. The bus, owned by Wellesley Motor Coach and driven by William Kimble of Billerica, sustained minor damage. Officer Lynch investigated the mishap.

With the approach of New Year's weekend, local police officers warn that the new drunk driving law has been fully implemented and is being strictly enforced. - Just this week a Woburn man was sentenced to 30 days in the house of correction after a second conviction for operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol.

Other activity

During the week ending December 27, Wilmington police officers investigated seven accidents, made five arrests, quieted six disturbances and responded to three fires and 17 alarms.

Eight larcenies were reported, medical assistance was given on four occasions, two protective custody detentions were made, three vehicles were reported stolen and one stolen vehicle was recovered.

Alert neighbors reported nine incidents of suspicious activity, five trespassing and four traffic complaints were taken, two assault and batteries were investigated along with six break and entries. One domestic problem was quieted, four liquor related complaints were taken and six incidents of vandalism are still under investigation.

"You Can't Take it With You"

The Wilmington High School senior class play was a great success - from both a financial and an entertainment standpoint. Many thanks go to the people involved and to the students and parents who showed their support by attending. Much credit must be given to Mr. Nathan, a teacher at WHS who directed the play. He brought much expertise from his four years experience acting in a dinner theatre club. His latest role was that of Murray the cop in "The Odd Couple."

Fine performances were given by Charmagne Anderson and Mike Medeiros in their roles of Alice and Tony, young lovers. David Strand did a marvelous job in his portrayal of the wise grandfather. Other seniors who gave their all were Karen Rowe, Valerie Schiavone, George Kelley, Phil Washburn and David Warren.

A three-vehicle accident at Concord and Woburn streets in Wilmington on Tuesday afternoon resulted in injuries to three persons. Lorraine Hanna of 42 Park St., Wilmington, driver of the car at right in the picture, was taken to Winchester Hospital. The driver of the truck, David Sperandio of 9 Clorinda Ave., Wilmington was taken to the Regional Health Center. Cathy Valente, operator of the third car, was taken to the Regional Health Center. The accident occurred when the Valente vehicle came out of Woburn Street, and collided with the truck. The truck then crossed a traffic island and collided head-on with the Hanna vehicle on Concord Street.

Roving New Year's resolutions

with Dan Ferullo

It's New Year's, so here are a few resolutions made by some familiar folks, along with a few promises of my own:

President Reagan promises to participate in a new program that places the rich into the homes of the unemployed for one week to see "how the other half lives."

Teddy Kennedy resolves he will absolutely not run for president — in 1996.

Jesse Helms insists he'll keep his promise not to open his mouth on the senate floor for the entire month of January.

Out-going Governor Ed King resolves not to believe any rumors speculating he's up for a job in the Reagan administration. "And any stories about my switching my party affiliation is total bunk," he retorts, "even if the death penalty isn't carried out in the next four years."

In-coming Governor Mike Dukakis promises he'll ride the T to work every day, with or without the Guardian Angels.

Pats coach Ron Meyers resolves to use that gift certificate to a Dale Carnegie course, given to him on Christmas by Sam Cunningham, as soon as the football season is over.

The Red Sox management promises not to sell "our boys" until Jim Rice has signed with the California Angels, via the New York Yankees and the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Dennis Eckersley resolves not to give up baseball, even if he's offered a starring role in Dustin Hoffman's next picture, "The Husband of Totsie," now that he's spent all that money and time on elocution lessons.

I promise to buy a new spare tire before taking my next trip into Daisy Buchanan's.

Channel 57's management resolves that no member of its on-the-air staff will be terminated without actually getting a two week notice.

I promise not to mention Gary LaPierre in my column until after June 15th.

No New Year's resolution would be complete without a few words on the promise of the future from Khalil Gibran:

From behind the walls of the Present I can hear the hymns of humanity.

I hear the sound of the bells announcing the beginning of the prayer in the temple of Beauty.

Bells molded in the metal of emotion and poised above the holy altar — the human heart.

From behind the Future I see multitudes worshipping on the bosom of Nature, their faces turned toward the East and awaiting the inundation of the morning of Truth.

Who'll get what from the gas tax

Higher US levy could result in 26,000 new jobs in Illinois;
California might gain 20,000

By George B. Merry
and Robert Kilborn Jr.
Staff writers of The Christian Science Monitor
Boston

Passage of the federal gasoline tax increase would please — but not thrill — state highway administrators around the country, a Monitor survey shows.

The congressional action also would catch their departments in various stages of readiness to apply the increased funds that will flow from the 5-cent-a-gallon jump in the federal tax. In certain cases the wheels could begin turning on new projects within days once the money is forthcoming from Washington. Other states are less certain when they can begin spending the new money.

Indeed, Sen. Gordon Humphrey (R) of New Hampshire and other GOP conservatives began a filibuster as the measure came before the full Senate Friday and prospects for prompt passage dimmed. The senator argues that it would take a minimum of four months and probably closer to a year before the program could begin to function as intended. The freshman legislator terms the proposed increase "New Deal nonsense."

There are other complications. Some states do not have matching funds available to satisfy the usual federal disbursement formula — roughly an 80 percent federal contribution to 20 percent by a state — and would have to use the year allowed in one version of the bill to try to raise the money.

"I'm not going to say that matching funds aren't available," says Richard Adorjan, director of public affairs for the Illinois Department of Transportation. "But if we were allowed to defer for a year, that would be very helpful."

Others — like Michigan, Massachusetts, New York, California, and Texas — soon will have new governors who may want to reorder maintenance priorities.

Certain states fear they'll end up with less than their fair share of the increased revenues despite the provision in the House version of the bill for a guaranteed 85 percent return on taxes collected for all. This is particularly true in the vast but thinly populated West, where administrators worry that the distribution formula may end up weighted more heavily toward the vehicle-mileage traveled than toward the number of miles of roads in a state.

Many secretaries of transportation were encamped in Washington for the duration of the House and Senate debates on the bill to try to ensure that their states' interests were being protected.

Says Gerald McCarthy, deputy director of the Michigan Department of Transportation, "We're fighting that [fair-share problem] by the hour."

Adds Cy K. Lynn, special assistant for public affairs in the North Carolina Department of Transportation, "Our concern is getting our fair share. We don't want to steal other states' money, but North Carolina has traditionally been a donor state — getting about 74 cents back on the dollar."

But John Henchman, financial planning director of the Washington State Transportation Department, reports: "We remain confident. We really believe the congressional people are going to work out a distribution system that is fair to the states."

An all too familiar highway sign

Massachusetts transportation officials, who did not want to be identified, expressed confidence that their congressional delegation, led by House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. (D) would ensure their state was amply rewarded when the funds were apportioned.

Several administrators surveyed declined to estimate how many new jobs the increased revenues might mean for their states. Some estimates, however, were relatively high. In Illinois, where one job in five is transportation-related, up to 26,000 new ones could result from the new federal revenues, says Mr. Adorjan. California could gain 20,000 new jobs, according to Transportation Department spokesman Bill Bronte.

No state intends to refuse the money, but all sources contacted indicate it will only partially address what has become a massive maintenance problem.

A typical response came from Mark Hopkins, administrator for programming and budget for the Florida Department of Transportation. "We're not going to let federal money just sit on the table; we're going to use it," he said.

At the same time, he indicated Florida could receive less than $100 million a year from the new increase, while its highway and bridge-maintenance needs at the moment are well into the hundreds of millions.

Other responses:

• In Texas, a recently completed study found that to adequately maintain and rehabilitate state-owned roads and bridges — and to build needed new ones — would cost $3 billion a year between now and the year 2002, according to Walt Polluch, director of management information, planning, and research for the state's Department of Highways. He estimates the federal tax hike will mean $275 million to $300 million a year in additional highway funds for his state. But it is a sore point with Texans that, although they received almost $443 million from the Highway Trust Fund in fiscal 1981, theirs has traditionally been a donor state. From 1957 to 1981, Texas averaged 76 cents back on each transportation tax dollar sent to Washington.

• California needs $3.9 billion in current dollars to rehabilitate its roads and bridges and complete its Interstate Highway System, Mr. Bronte says. That compares with the roughly $275 million the state expects to receive when federal highway funds for fiscal 1983 are distributed. In fiscal 1981, the last year for which complete figures are available, the state received $649.6 million from the federal Highway Trust Fund. California, too, has long been a donor state.

• Estimated spending needs in New Jersey are $500 million a year for the next 10 years, according to Debbie Lawler, a public affairs officer for that state's Department of Transportation. A short list of the state's problems includes 398 functionally obsolete bridges, another 1,096 that are structurally deficient, 25 miles of interstate roads that remain to be completed by 1991, and a highway maintenance staff that has been cut back to the level of 20 years ago.

• Maine currently spends about $55 million a year on maintenance, as opposed to the $80 million to $100 million a year needed "over an extended period of time," according to Deputy Commissioner of Transportation Daniel Webster. But state officials are estimating a low $5 million to $25 million-a-year share of the new revenues. "And we'll need $25 million in to get it," he complains.

• Colorado's needs are a "bottomless pit," says Con Shea, assistant to the executive director of the state's highway department. The state needs to spend $5 billion over the next 20 years to catch up with its maintenance problems, he claims.

Nationwide, says Edward Moore, research director for the construction industry-supported Road Information Program, repair needs far exceed what the increased levy would provide. "It would take $40 billion a year for the next 10 years just to catch up," he maintains.

States that lack matching funds usually try to generate them through increases in their own gasoline taxes. But the outlook for passage of such increases among states surveyed is mixed.

Michigan is "probably at the head of the list" of those lacking matching funds, says Mr. McCarthy. The Legislature, in lame-duck session, is wrestling with a proposed increase of 4 cents a gallon in the fuel tax that both outgoing Gov. William Milliken (R) and his successor, James Blanchard (D), support.

The New Jersey Legislature doesn't seem inclined to pass a tax hike, reports Ms. Lawler. Gov. Thomas Kean (R) failed to win a 5 percent increase last summer and has proposed the measure again. "But there seems to be less support than ever," she says.

Colorado "would be OK" if the Legislature would approve a 5-cent-a-gallon increase in the fuel tax over a three-year period, says Mr. Shea. But the Legislature does not reconvene until January.

Maine Gov. Joseph Brennan (D), back for a second term, has yet to decide whether to seek a gas-tax increase, Mr. Webster says. But the governor is reminding voters that he did not promise to forego tax hikes this time as he did when elected four years ago. Maine does not have funds to match the added money the US tax increase would provide.

The Washington State Transportation Commission has asked Gov. John Spellman (R) to seek a 7-cent-a-gallon boost in the gas tax over three years, beginning in fiscal 1984.

One cent per gallon of the proposed federal gasoline tax increase — or $1.1 billion a year — would be designated for mass transit. The Washington-based American Public Transit Association estimates that would generate more than 87,000 new jobs and would "go a long way toward upgrading transit's infrastructure," an APTA statement says. "Many of the more depressed industries would benefit considerably."

High Tech: More openings than talent

Our national policy on technical education remains vague and unsure, Howard P. Foley, president of Massachusetts High Technology Council, declared.

He spoke at the New England high school guidance directors convocation dinner at Wentworth Institute of Technology.

"In other countries," he said, "educators, government officials and industry executives work together to ensure educational quality and relevance. Here in the United States, we have a tendency to bicker — if we even talk at all."

Foley told the educators that the national system for educating engineers and computer scientists is at a saturation point.

"The reason so many skill positions remain unfilled is simple — the supply of technical talent is being outstripped by industry demand — and this problem is not unique to Massachusetts," he said.

He pointed out that the manpower problem does not begin at the post-secondary level.

"Today, we find one high school graduate in six has studied more than one year of mathematics or science, limiting the human resource pool both industry and academia rely on. Our children can blast away millions of aliens on video screens, but only a handful understand what's going on behind that exploding screen, and that is becoming a very serious problem. Serious for us, serious for you, and serious for our children."

He warned that this region's economic growth is likely to be slowed by a lack of appropriately trained individuals.

A survey indicated, according to him, that there will be 100,000 new jobs in high technology in Massachusetts between now and the end of 1985.

He remarked that whether there will be a sufficient number of college graduates to meet this increased demand is at best problematic

Standard Fuel Charge Clause

The fuel charge per Kwh applicable to customers billed on a monthly basis will be the month's estimated energy cost divided by the estimated sales of Kwh in that month, adjusted by over and under collections in the previous month.

Adjustments will be made periodically to account for over and under recovery of purchased energy costs. The object is to continually balance fuel costs with fuel charges.
Adjustments will be calculated to credit over collections or charge under collections in no less than a three month period.

The purpose of the fuel charge is to recover only that portion of the wholesale power cost which can be classified as fuel related. This is to include all expenses in the purchases of short term capacity and transmission, purchased only to reduce energy costs on jointly owned generating plants or unit contracts under long term purchase agreements.

For residential customers the same fuel charge will be applied to the bill in the month the customers' consumption is estimated as to the bill in the following month in which the meter is read.

Museum events

If you are home for the holidays, why not get in the car and take advantage of some special events at the museums of Greater Boston. COMING ATTRACTIONS especially recommends the Children's Museum in Boston, the Museum of Our National Heritage in Lexington and the Hammond Castle Museum in Gloucester.

Boston Elevated recalled

A vacation week special for children and their families, the running of model trolley cars by a group of area professionals on specially built modules, will take place in the lobby area of the Museum of Our National Heritage, from Sunday, December 26th through Friday, December 31st. Admission is free.

The trolley cars are miniatures of original operating trolley cars from lines in Boston, New England and New York, and run on tracks and trolley wires. The O scale layouts, custom built by members of the group, are modeled after original locations in the city and countryside. Individual modelers from the group of trolley enthusiasts will be on hand to run their own cars and to answer questions. The cars, which are 1/4" scale, are from the old Boston Elevated and MTA lines, the New York Elevated, and other lines from the New England area.

The trolleys will run on Sundays, from noon to 5:30 PM, and Monday through Friday during regular museum hours, from 10 AM to 4 PM. The Museum is located at the junction of Massachusetts Ave. and Marrett Rd. in Lexington.

For further information, call 861-6560.

Experienced D & D players invited

Dungeons and Dragons fans will have another opportunity to test their mettle in a castle setting during Christmas vacation. On Tuesday, December 28th, Dungeons and Dragons enthusiasts can cross the drawbridge of Hammond Castle Museum, where they can play from 9 AM to 1 PM.

Players will be conducted through dark spiral stairways, vaulted stone halls lit by candles and the glint of armour, the dining room and bed chamber of a lord, and a courtyard, flanked by medieval house facades, Roman tombstones, and Mediterranean balconies, surrounding a 10 foot deep pool. After touring the castle, play will commence in the Great Hall, with its 65 foot high ceilings, mammoth fireplace, and a Buddhist manuscript case, containing the skull of a crew member of Columbus.

Dungeons and Dragons Day is intended for experienced players. It is suggested that players come in groups with a pre-selected Dungeon Master. Players are encouraged to bring a bag lunch. Drinks and snacks will be available at a small charge. Admission to Dungeons and Dragons Day is $4. Please call 283-7673 for additional information and reservations.

Year of the Boar awaits its entrance

Coming Attractions

By William Pacino

Sunday, January 9, from 10 AM to 4 PM. The day promises plenty of enriching entertainment for the whole family.

Activities include turning paper into flowers with origami, finishing haiku poems, creating a battledore and shuttlecock and challenging friends to harutsuki, a game similar to badminton. Or would you prefer making fish prints—using real fish? Or pounding rice into mochi (rice cakes)?

The Kendo Club of Boston will demonstrate the art of traditional Japanese fencing, while the Urasenke Tea Society of Boston will host a tea ceremony.

The Children's Museum is located at Museum Wharf, 300 Congress St. on Boston's waterfront. For travel, hours and admission information, call the What's Up Line at 426-8855.

Best-selling author and controversial economic forecaster Howard J. Ruff will present his view of the economic future at the 88th annual Northeast Retail Lumbermen's Association Convention and America East Building Materials Exposition in Hynes Auditorium, Boston, Jan. 7-9.

Ruff's talk, which will be delivered the first day of the three-day convention, is titled "How to Invest in a Malarial Economy."

Although most well-known as author of the best-selling books "How to Prosper During the Coming Bad Years" and "Survive and Win in the Inflationary Eighties," Ruff also publishes "The Ruff Times," which, with more than 170,000 subscribers, is one of the largest financial newsletters of its kind in the country.

Other speakers at the convention, the largest gathering of lumber and building material dealers in the Northeast, includes Charles Kuralt and Marvin Cetron. Kuralt will speak about his experiences "On the Road" for CBS-TV news. Cetron, founder and president of Forecasting International, will speak on "Encounters with the Future: A Forecast of Life into the 21st Century."

A useful new guide to help entrepreneurs obtain investment money for their new companies has been prepared by Deloitte Haskins and Sells, one of the nation's "Big Eight" accounting firms.

Entitled, "Raising Venture Capital—An Entrepreneur's Guidebook," the 104-page book is designed to help the founder of a new business organize and start up the new firm, develop a well-thought-out, concise business plan, and make an effective presentation before prospective investors.

The Boston office of Deloitte Haskins and Sells is located at 28 State Street. For further information, call 742-7660.

SS changes in 1983

Starting January 1, 1983, the amount of earnings subject to Social Security tax will increase from $32,400 to $35,700, according to Dover C. Crawford, Social Security district manager in Malden.

This means that the maximum tax payable by employees and employers will increase from $2,170.80 to $2,391.90.

The amount of earnings a person receiving Social Security benefits can have in 1983 without affecting his or her benefits under the retirement test will change from $6,000 to $6,600 for people 65 and over and from $4,440 to 4,920 for people under 65. Also, starting January 1, 1983, the age at which the retirement test no longer applies drops from 72 to 70.

Another change announced for 1983 was the increase from $340 to $370 in the amount of earnings that will count as a quarter of coverage. A quarter of coverage is the measure used to determine whether a worker is eligible for Social Security benefits. A total of $1,480 or more in earnings during 1983 will count for 4 quarters of coverage, the maximum creditable for a year.
